Reviews and Recommendations on PBN Implementations

1. The MITRE Corporation Center for Advanced Aviation System Development (CAASD). 2011. "Performance Based Navigation Capability Report."
This report provides comprehensive information about the top 50 airports in the National Airspace System. Information includes runway configuration, taxi time, and delay characteristics; fleet and operator characteristics; quantities of types of published procedures; and current and forecast fleet equipment levels for different aircraft navigation capabilities. For each airport, the report provides the following information: 1) quantities of published instrument procedures, including conventional, RNAV 1 SIDs and STARs, and RNP AR SIDs; 2) key performance metrics; 3) top carriers and aircraft types; 4) runway configurations and utilization; 5) distribution of operations by aircraft operator type and aircraft engine type; 6) current and forecasted percentages of operations capable of RNAV 1, RNAV 2, RNP 1, RNP 2, RNP 0.3, RNP 0.3 with Radius-To-Fix, RNP Approval Required, and RNP AR Operational Approval procedures.
2. Office of Inspector General. 2012. "Challenges with Implementing Near-Term NextGen Capabilities at Congested Airports Could Delay Benefits."
This report assessed the extent to which the FAA is responding to recommendations of the RTCA task force's 32 recommendations from September, 2009 for accelerating NextGen deployment and addressing barriers that hinder successful implementation of the recommendations. The report placed particular focus on the FAA's Metroplex program. The report found multiple deficiencies in an evaluation of 136 solutions proposed for 7 metroplex sites. The report found need for improvement in 1) implementing more advanced technologies and advanced procedures, 2) integrating use of other initiatives, and 3) streamlining procedures for implementation and deployment. The barriers remaining included 1) streamlining the process for implementing new flight procedures, 2) applying environmental regulations, and 3) training controllers. The FAA's Metroplex program was not leveraging advanced RNP procedures, only RNAV procedures and improved vertical profiles. The FAA's communication and collaboration with local airline and air traffic management has been limited. The FAA needs to develop a "best-equipped-best-served" policy. The FAA needs to establish a formal mechanism to communicate metroplex progress that allows continual feedback and coordination with the airlines and local FAA air traffic officials as work progresses at each metroplex site. The FAA needs to establish a process to select leads for the Metroplex team well in advance of the time that design and implementation teams are scheduled to begin. The FAA needs to include all stakeholders, including Flight Standards personnel, in implementing new flight procedures.
3. RTCA NextGen Advisory Committee. 2013. "CatEx 2: Recommendation for Implementing the Categorical Exclusion in Section 213(c)(2) of the FAA Modernization and Reform Act of 2012."
